THE CRIME OF VIOLATION OF URBAN PLANNING RULES

On September 2 and 3, Law no. 32/2010 and Law no. 41/2010, respectively, were published, creating new types of crimes regarding urban planning and construction.

Law no. 32/2010 added article 278-A to the Portuguese Criminal Code, creating the crime of “Violation of urban planning rules” according to which “those who – conscious

planning and construction* *of the non-conformity of their behaviour

vis-à-vis applicable urban-planning
regulations – perform construction, reconstruction or enlargement works of immovable property, affecting public roads,*

land included in the National Ecological Reserve (REN), National Agricultural Reserve (RAN), a public domain or land which is especially protected by law, are punished with up to three years of imprisonment or fine”.

However, according to paragraph 2 of the aforementioned article, works of minor urbanistic relevance, classified as such by law, are not punishable. These works are those foreseen in article 6-A of Legal Regime for Construction and Land Development (approved by Decree-Law no. 555/99, of December 16, with the amendments introduced by Decree-Law no. 26/2010, of March 30 and Law no. 28/2010, of relevance are not punishable*

September 2), and they are defined as construction and demolition works which possess, by reason of their nature, dimension or location, a minor urbanistic impact. Works of minor urbanistic relevance are also those which, according to article 6-A, paragraph 1, subparagraph i), are classified as such by municipal regulations.

Also, Law no. 32/2010 created, through article 382-A of the Criminal Code, the crime of “Violation of urban planning rules by a public officer” (“funcionário”), according to which “public officers, who – conscious of the non-conformity of their behaviour vis-à-vis urban-planning regulations – inform or decide positively a licensing or authorization procedure or, within it, provide false information about the applicable laws or regulations, are punished with up to three years of imprisonment or fine”.

*Crime of violation of urban planning
rules by public official
and public officer*

These amendments to the Portuguese Criminal Code will come into force on March 1, 2011.

On the other hand, Law no. 41/2010 of September 3 amended Law no. 34/87 of July 16, concerning crimes by “public officials”¹ (“titular de cargo político”), by adding the new Article 18.º-A, also named “Violation of urban planning rules”, according to which public officials, who – conscious of the non-conformity of their behaviour vis-à-vis urban-planning regulations – inform or decide positively a licensing or authorization procedure or, within it, provide false information about the applicable laws or regulations, are punished with up to three years of imprisonment or fine.

In crimes in which the agent is a holder of a public office or a public officer, the imprisonment can go up to five years, should the construction that is subject to license or authorization affect public roads, land included in the REN, RAN, public domain or land which is especially protected by law.

Law no. 41/2010 will come into force on March 2, 2011.

¹ Under the terms of article 3 of Law no. 34/87, and for the purposes of the crimes in question, public officials are Mayors and Municipal Councillors.
